

Use of the group study rooms in the GD library:

1. Seven group study rooms are available on floor 05 of the GDlibrary.
2. The group study rooms can be used by student study groups from the Faculties of Social Sciences, Economics and Business Administration and the Central Law Department of Ruhr-Universität Bochum after prior registration via the SuperSaaS booking system.
3. The study group receives the transponder for the group study room in return for a student ID card. The person depositing the student ID card is also responsible for the transponder and the proper use of the group study room.
4. The maximum duration of a booking is 3 hours per day, per learning group and per person.
5. Bookings for a selected time are possible a maximum of 14 days in advance.
6. A maximum of 2 advance bookings per learning group and per person will be accepted.
7. Registrations are considered binding by the GD Library. If a previously registered appointment cannot be kept, this appointment must be cancelled online so that the group study room can be booked elsewhere at short notice.
8. As the group study rooms are part of the library, the same rules of use apply as for the entire library. These include in particular the ban on taking food and drink (with the exception of water), the smoking ban as well as § 4(4) of the GD Library User Regulations. In the event of non-compliance, the relevant study groups may be excluded from further use of the group study rooms.
9. The group study rooms must be left tidy and orderly after use, i.e. the windows (if available) must be closed, rubbish must be disposed of in the rubbish bins provided and books removed from the open shelves must be put back. The rooms must also be locked when leaving. The rooms are checked by the staff of the GD Library after each use.
10. For safety reasons, it is not permitted to lock the door during your stay in the group study rooms.

Your library team wishes you every success in your study group
